Global perspectives on social order, violence and organised crime

Course organiser: Dr Paolo Campana, Institute of Criminology (pc524@cam.ac.uk).

Lecturers: Dr Paolo Campana, Institute of Criminology (PC)
Dr Justice Tankebe, Institute of Criminology (JT)
Dr Sara Valdebenito, Institute of Criminology (SV)

Course structure: The course will be taught in 16 two-hour lectures (Michaelmas Term and Lent Term) plus one two-hour revision lecture in Easter Term.

Time: Wednesday, 11am – 1pm

Dates: The first lecture in Michaelmas is on October 14th and in Lent on January 27th. The Easter revision session is on May 5th.

Venue: TBC.

Aims and content:

This course offers an analytical exploration of social order, violence and organised forms of criminality. Particular emphasis will be placed on the mechanisms underpinning such phenomena. The course adopts a comparative approach to tease out similarities – and differences – between phenomena observed in different locales across the world and/or at different points in time.

The course begins in Michaelmas Term by exploring issues related to organised crime. It starts with discussing what organised crime is, and then focuses on specific forms of organised crime: drug production and trafficking; cybercrime; human trafficking; migrant smuggling; gangs and Mafias. In Lent Term, the course focuses on global perspectives on violence including the study of long-term trends in violence, global patterns of violence in contemporary societies and the relationship between social and gender inequality and violence. The course ends with a set of two lectures discussing vigilante violence and extrajudicial killings, and colonialism, racial injustice and police violence. The course is multidisciplinary and draws on concepts from sociology, law, criminology, history, industrial economics, political economy, political theory and developmental psychology.
