Report by the Head of the Sociology Department

The Department of Sociology has maintained its distinguished record in teaching, research grants and publications, as well as in service to the wider professional community.

Teaching

Sociology in Cambridge continued to win national acclaim for its undergraduate teaching programme. Cambridge Sociology again was ranked top out of 89 UK sociology departments listed in the Complete University Guide and it was top in 2010 and 2011 Guardian league tables for Sociology. It was also placed top in the Times online rankings. This exceptional record of success attests to Cambridge's standing as one of the world's pre-eminent institutions for the study of sociology.

The graduate community in sociology remains large and vibrant. The MPhil in Modern Society and Global Transformations continues to attract a large number of applicants, and all 31 students enrolled in the 2010-11 programme successfully completed the course, with 7 gaining distinctions. In 2010-11 there were 75 students registered for PhD research in Sociology, including 22 new students joining the programme. Many of our students have secured highly competitive research scholarships from the ESRC, Gates Foundation, and Cambridge Trust.

The Department is delighted that Dr Brendan Burchell was honoured for his services both to graduate and undergraduate teaching by being awarded the 2011 Pilkington Teaching Prize.

Departmental Seminars

The Department continued its high profile series of Sociology Seminars and open lectures. We had a number of well-known visiting speakers, including Michael Mann, Manuel Castells, Loic Wacquant and Saskia Sassen. The Seminars were well attended by staff and graduate students, and they provided a forum in the Department for the discussion of sociological research.

Publications

All members of the Department have been very active in research. A fuller account of the publication outputs can be found elsewhere in the Annual Report, but it is worth highlighting here some of the many books that have been published this year including: Capitalist Diversity and Diversity within Capitalism (C. Lane and G. Woods (eds)); Elites and Classes in the Transformation of State Socialism (D. Lane); Sexuality (V. Mottier); Gender Inequalities in the 21st Century (Scott, Crompton and Lyonette (eds)).

Darin Weinberg's book Of Others Inside: Insanity, Addiction and Belonging in America was awarded the prestigious 2011 Melvin Pollner Prize in Ethnomethodology, by the American Sociological Association (ASA). His article 'On the Social Construction of Social Problems and Problems Theory' also won the 2011 ASA Outstanding Article Award from the Social Problems Theory Division for the Study of Social Problems. John Thompson's book Merchants of Culture was featured on the BBC Radio 4 programme 'Thinking Allowed' and was also featured on the Today Programme. It was also nominated by the 'Times Higher Education' as book of the week and by 'The New Statesman' as book of the year.

Media, Press and Outreach

The Department organised a debate on Good Parenting: An evidence based perspective at the Cambridge Festival of Ideas. Twelve PhD and postdoctoral researchers presented their research at the 2011 British Sociology Association. Larry King's research on pharmaceutical lobbying under postcommunism gained extensive press coverage. Jacqueline Scott talked about the burden of unpaid work at the Guardian Hay-on-Wye Festival and her research (with Anke Plagnol and Jane Nolan) on gender and quality of life received wide media attention.

Research Grants

The Department continued its stellar record in winning research grants and contributing to this important stream of university income.

Larry King has been awarded almost three million pounds for his ERC Advanced Investigator Award on Privatisation and Mortality in Post-Communism: A Multi-level indirect demographic analysis. This brings together a stellar group of investigators to investigate the way health funding is related to excessive mortality in post-communist regimes.

Early career researchers and post-doc Fellows have also continued to be highly successful in winning prestigious Fellowships, including Pia Schober's British Academy Fellowship on the Gender Division of Domestic Work and Anke Plagnol's Levehulme Fellowship on Female Labour-force Participation and Well-being. We are delighted to host Dr Ruth Gaunt from Israel, as a Marie Curie Fellow with a project on Gender Inequalities in the Home and Dr Bruno Perreau who has been awarded a Newton International Fellowship within the department.

Staff Changes

We are sad to note that two very valuable members of our academic staff - Dr Mirca Madianou and Dr Jane Nolan are leaving us to take up promotions elsewhere and we wish them every success. We are delighted to welcome new members of staff. We extend our warmest congratulations to Professor Sarah Franklin on her appointment as the new Professor of Sociology (from October 2011). She will follow on from an illustrious line of Sociology Professors, including Goran Therborn, Bryan Turner, and Anthony Giddens. We are also very pleased to welcome Dr David Stuckler and Dr Jeff Miley as University lecturers. Finally we also extend a warm welcome Dr Gerald McClaren, who will be taking up his appointment as the Administrative Officer for Sociology in October 2011.

Future changes

Sociology will be part of the new Faculty of Human, Social and Political Sciences from August 2011 onwards. Exciting times lie ahead, with the introduction of a new Tripos and the development of new cross-disciplinary research initiatives, particularly in bio-medicine and public health. Sociology at Cambridge is fortunate in the outstanding quality of our students and staff. This bodes well for the future.

Undergraduate Students

Undergraduate Student Numbers, 2010-2011

Part I	124
Part IIA	127
Part IIB	118
Total	369

Report by the Director of Undergraduate Education

In 2010-11, a considerable number of students (117) opted for the first year sociology paper and also for sociology in the second year, with 37 students in the Part IIA Sociology stream and 9 students in the combined Psychology-Sociology stream. In the third year, 29 opted for Sociology and 6 for the combined Psychology-Sociology stream.

In Part I Paulina Skorupa (Corpus Christi College) won the Polity Prize. In Part II the Polity Prize went to Ifedolapo Apampa (Part IIA, Jesus College) and Jasmine Sandelson (Part IIB, Queens College). The joint Sociology and Psychology Prize went to Luke Billingham (Trinity Hall). We congratulate all of them.

The undergraduate teaching went well, as the completed student questionnaires and exam results testify.

Like last year, we organised, in collaboration with our colleagues in the Department of Social and Developmental Psychology, a Psychology and Sociology Sutton Trust Summer School for year 12 (or equivalent) students from UK-state-maintained schools, with senior members of our department, postdoctoral researchers and doctoral students involved in the teaching of the sociology component.

Dr Patrick Baert, Director of Undergraduate Education for Sociology

Report by the Director of Graduate Education

A total of 106 graduate sociology students were registered in 2010-2011: 31 MPhils and 75 PhDs. The Department of Sociology's graduate teaching continues to be an important strength of the Department. For the third year, PPSIS graduates have been organized more along departmental lines, and the strong sense of identity amongst the sociology graduates has been a rich reward from that restructuring. The graduate students contribute to the intellectual community, and are a vibrant force in the seminars, reading groups and social activities of the department. The PhD students also make an important contribution to the undergraduate teaching, which gives them a valuable opportunity to develop their communication and teaching skills. The graduate students organize a number of events that include the psychology and politics students in the wider Faculty, such as the Tuesday 'coffee and cake' mornings and the Graduate seminars, where they can present their research to members of the Faculty as well as to each other. The refurbished graduate 'attic' has been successful in creating a space for graduate students to socialise and have occasional special events such as film nights and seasonal parties.

Some of the research groups in the faculty continued as nexuses for shared research interests, such as the Individual in the Labour Market Research Group. Other groups developed as a number of PhD students realized that they had overlapping interests, such as the Social Theory reading group.

In line with the continuing growth of sociology graduate education in Cambridge, the number of both applications and of new admissions to the PhD programme for 2010 were the highest in the forty year history of the Faculty. Thankfully we now have an additional member of staff, Jessica Hymas, to assist with the increased graduate administration load.

MPhil in Modern Societies and Global transformations

The MPhil course in 2010-11 ran smoothly under direction from Dr David Lehmann. One of the great strengths of the course is that the students come from a wide variety of countries from all corners of the globe: this year was no exception, with 26 of the candidates coming from outside of the UK. The academic standards on the course were high, even by Cambridge standards. A record seven students were awarded Distinctions by the examiners: Shlomo Bolts, Zachary McCune, Annika Olsen, Annelisa Pedersen, William Singleton, Hu Wang and Alexander Wood. A number of the MPhil candidates applied for, and were accepted to continue to the Cambridge Sociology PhD programme. Diana Kudaibergenova, Yang Hu and Alex Wood stayed on to start their PhDs immediately in Cambridge, and some students from previous years' MPhils returned to continue after a gap of one or two years. Many others gained PhD places in other prestigious universities, went on to other vocational courses or secured employment in research or other sectors.

MPhil applications

There were 96 applications in total for the MPhil in Modern Society and Global Transformations (up 5% on the previous year) and 31 began the course in October 2010. One student was allowed leave to defer submission of thesis; the rest completed successfully in July 2011.

Sociology PhD Programme

On 1 October 2010 there were 53 students already registered for the PhD degree. In the admissions process, the Sociology Graduate Education Committee received 77 new applications and of these, 22 began the course full-time (this year there were no new part-time PhD students). Seven of those 22 had done the Cambridge sociology MPhil either in 2009-10 or before.

Research Groups

Individual in the Labour Market Reading and Research group

One of the most active groups in the Department of Sociology is the Individual in the Labour Market reading and research group (ILMrg) directed by Dr Brendan Burchell. The ILMrg has been meeting regularly since 2001 and has an active programme of meetings and social gatherings for teaching staff, post-docs and graduate students; this past year has perhaps been our most active year yet with crowded rooms of staff and students arguing over the methodological and policy strengths and weaknesses of sociological and interdisciplinary papers on labour markets. In fact the format was so successful that we even had a spin-off reading group on social theory (lead by Richenda Herzig).

Thanks to generous sponsorship from the Cambridge Journal of Economics we can cover costs of entertainment and travel for guest speakers, and provide services like business cards for members. Although still primarily a Sociology-based group, we also have members from Geography, Economics, Social Psychology, Politics and Management. The group had fortnightly meetings during term-time. In addition to our regular reading-based meetings, in 2009-10 we also had:

- A film night (Requiem for Detroit)
- A YouTube open-mike evening (when the film would not play!)

- A pizza and beer evening somewhere in a back garden in the leafy suburbs of Cambridge
- A seminar on social science and policy by Dr Stella Creasy, MP (a graduate from the Faculty)

Many members have successfully concluded their time at Cambridge and moved on in the past year. Two of the Reading Group's MPhil students (Alex Wood and Yang Hu) have progressed to fully funded PhDs places at Cambridge this year, several others will be doing PhDs elsewhere, or are hoping to return to Cambridge to start a PhD in 2012. Torsten Geelan has returned as a PhD student, having graduated from the MPhil in 2010. Others have found employment in occupations from the financial traders to university researchers. Ex-PhD students have successfully found employment in university research, university lecturing, the media, commercial research and City banking. And congratulations to Yi Lai and Yen-Chun Chen who both became engaged to get married. Two members of the ILM have been very active on behalf of all the sociology graduate students; Julia Gumy was elected as the PhD representative for the whole Faculty, as well as representing the Sociology PhD students, and Heather Arata was elected as the rep for the sociology MPhil students.

We were also pleased to be able to welcome an academic visitor to the group this year, Dr Vikinta Rosinaite from the University of Vilnius in Latvia, who completed two research papers during her stay in Cambridge. Also, Dr Meltem Ince from Yasar University in Turkey arrived in September to spend most of the next academic year in Cambridge, researching gender and labour markets from economic and sociological perspectives.

Now that this group has been going for over 10 years, there are dozens of ex-members who have left Cambridge for all parts of the globe and doing a variety of different jobs, but still keeping in touch with their supervisors and contemporaries. We have recently instigated an alumni status for members of the ILM who have either gained their PhDs or left Cambridge to pursue their studies or career elsewhere. This group currently has over 30 founding members linked by a ucam website, LinkedIn and a Google groups mailing list (Thanks to Dr Ines Wichert for initiating this group). We are currently considering ways in which to facilitate links, where useful, between current and alumni members.

Many other graduate students and post-doc researchers made a start to their publishing careers with reports, book reviews and conference papers; a selection of their publications is listed in Appendix C.

Cambridge Socio-legal Group

The Cambridge Socio-Legal Group was established in 1997 as an interdisciplinary discussion forum concerned with promoting debate on topical socio-legal issues, including those with relevance to policy-making. It is hosted by the Centre for Family Research, Faculty of Politics, Psychology, Sociology, and International Studies (PPSIS), and by the Faculty of Law. The Group serves to bring together people from different faculties across the University (Law, Criminology, Politics, Psychology, Sociology and International Relations, Psychiatry, Biology, Economics, Social Anthropology, and others) as well as prominent socio-legal scholars from other institutions. The Socio-legal Group thus provides a focus for those in the University engaged in socio-legal research, and a basis for linking with the broader world of socio-legal scholarship in the Britain and abroad. The Group also aims to encourage and supports its individual members to work collaboratively, thus fostering inter-disciplinary cross-fertilisations. To this end, the Group holds occasional seminars, at least one a term. Future projects include an interdisciplinary symposium on 'Birth Matters' and possibly one on the 'Home'.

Symposia and Book Projects

The Group is best known outside Cambridge for its successful series of book projects, which have ranged across a wide range of issues. These projects are enhanced by contributors and other discussants coming together in a residential seminar across several days to discuss work in progress, providing participants with the benefit of insights from each others' research. Past projects include:

- What is a Parent? A Socio-Legal Analysis (1999) edited by Andrew Bainham, Shelley Day Sclater and Martin Richards, concerned with legal and social conceptions of parenthood.
- Body Lore and Laws (2002) edited by Andrew Bainham, Shelly Day Sclater and Martin Richards, on law and the human body.
- Children and their Families: Contact, Rights and Welfare (2003) edited by Andrew Bainham, Bridget Lindley, Martin Richards and Liz Trinder, on contact between parents, children and other family relations.
- Sexuality Repositioned: Diversity and the Law (2004) edited by Belinda Brooks-Gordon, Loraine Gelsthorpe, Martin Johnson and Andrew Bainham.
- Kinship Matters (2006) edited by Fatemeh Ebtehaj, Bridget Lindley and Martin Richards, on evolving notions and practices of kinship in contemporary Britain and the interrelationship of kinship, law and social policy.
- Death Rites and Rights (2007) edited by Belinda Brooks-Gordon, Fatemeh Ebtehaj, Jonathan Herring, Martin Johnson and Martin Richards, examining the ways in which death is experienced in various aspects of modern society.

- Regulating autonomy: sex, reproduction and families (2009) edited by Fatemeh Ebtehaj, Emily Jackson, Martin Richards and Shelley Day Sclater.
- Sharing Lives, Dividing Assets: An Inter-Disciplinary Study (2009) edited by Joanna Miles and Rebecca Probert

The Group's most recent project was a symposium on Intoxication: Problematic Pleasures, held in March. This was a hugely exciting symposium which focused on medical expertise and understandings of intoxication in historical perspective, health expertise in the 20th century, expert and lay knowledge's in exculpatory intoxication in criminal law, the relation of inebriety to insurance, drinking and state formation, the cultural domestication of intoxicants, binge drinking, self and intoxicant experience: a scientific perspective and popular print and Renaissance drinking cultures, embodied memory and intoxication problems, 'losing control' in early modern literature and praxis, interaction and the loss of self-control. The lively debate which ensued reflected interest from law, sociology, history, criminology, psychology, cultural theory, and health studies. A book is in preparation, edited by P. Withington, D. Weinberg, C. Regan and J. Herring. Look out for it in due course!

Occasional Seminars

The Group also holds occasional seminars during the year. Recent seminars have included:

Anthony Good, Professor Emeritus, Department of Social Anthropology, University of Edinburgh, on Witness Statements and Credibility Assessments in the British Asylum Courts (jointly organised with the Department of Social Anthropology)

Robert Wintemute, Professor of Human Rights Law, School of Law, King's College London, on Lesbian and Gay Parenting and European Human Rights Law: When will France catch up with the UK? (jointly organised with the Centre for Family Research)

Dr Liz Hales, Senior Research Associate, Institute of Criminology, University of Cambridge, on Research on the Criminalisation of Migrant Women

Dr Bronwyn Naylor, Senior Lecturer in Law at Monash University, Australia, on Monitoring for Human Rights in Places of Detention: NPMs and IMBs – how effective are they in securing human rights?

May 2010: The burden of unpaid work

Professor Scott gave the following talk at the Guardian Hay Festival: 'How can there be gender equality if women are still doing most of the unpaid, domestic work?' Professor Jacqueline Scott said the issue goes to the crux of the gender equality debate, but it's hard to disentangle from related subjects such as equal pay and gender expectations, particularly around childcare.
